

Heart Failure Patient Education Modules

The Heart Failure Society of America (HFSA) has created a series of patient education materials, known as modules, to provide practical information on specific topics to educate and empower patients, caregivers, and their family members. Each module includes background information on the topic, questions they should ask their doctors or nurses, and more. Look below to access each module.

This series of educational modules is designed to help patients learn to live successfully with heart failure. The advice in the modules can help heart failure patients feel better, stay out of the hospital, and live longer.

Scan here to download the modules for free

hfsa.org/patientmodules

HFSA offers free membership to patients and caregivers not working in the heart failure field. To learn more visit hfsa.org/membership or scan below.

